CHAPTER 17

(H.B. 294)

AN ACT relating to state legislative districts.

WHEREAS, the General Assembly finds that the 1980 population of Kentucky is 3,660,777 and that the ideal Representative District population is therefor approximately 36,608; and

WHEREAS, The General Assembly recognizes that federal constitutional law requires substantial equality of population among state legislative districts while allowing some flexibility to effectuate other rational state policies; and

WHEREAS, the General Assembly finds, as have the federal courts, that it is a practical impossibility to achieve precise equality among districts as numerous and small as Kentucky's representative districts; and

WHEREAS, it is the intent of the General Assembly to achieve substantial equality among state representative districts while balancing the overriding principle of population equality with other legitimate and rational considerations, including the Kentucky Constitution's mandate to respect the integrity of counties and the desire to offer voters and their representatives the opportunity to adequately and appropriately deal with local problems and issues;

NOW, THEREFORE,

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:
